When a buyer can purchase similar products from different suppliers. Increases the buyer's power because the buyer doesn't have to rely on just one supplier.

The entity responsible for ensuring the imported/exported goods comply with local laws and regulations, for filing the documentation for duty entry, and for paying any associated import duties or taxes.

A gift, money, or a favor given by one person to another intending to influence the person's decision, judgment, or conduct. Offering or accepting bribes is illegal in most countries and a violation of the UN Global Compact. A complicating factor is that bribes are expected parts of business transactions in some cultures. Syn.: facilitating payments.

Country regulations that penalize organizations that engage in bribery. The OECD Anti-Bribery Convention requires countries to develop such regulations.

A ban established by a nation's government that prohibits individuals or organizations from conducting any trade with individuals or organizations from another particular nation.

An agreement that allows US customs agents in foreign ports to identify and inspect high-risk containers prior to their being loaded on a ship bound to a US port.

An agreement between or among countries intended to reduce or remove barriers to trade within member countries. Frequently, but not always, those countries are geographically close. Examples of trade blocs are the European Economic Community and the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). Syn.: trading bloc.

Any material that a country's relevant government agency has classified as a risk to human, animal, or environmental health or to property—either on its own or due to interaction with other elements. A government's transportation authority may allow transportation only when proper permits and safety precautions are implemented. Similarly, a government may regulate or supervise hazardous material disposal. Categories include explosives, flammable or corrosive liquids or gasses, biohazards, and radioactive materials.

A bill of lading issued by a non-vessel-operating common carrier (NVOCC), consolidator, or freight forwarder. It indicates the carrier's name and lists the master bill of lading. See: bill of lading (master).

A bill of lading for transporting domestic or international freight by air. It specifies the destination and terms of trade agreed upon by the shipper and transportation organization.

A certificate that attests that the goods can be legally sold in the country of export. The intent is to prevent defective products from being exported.

Temporary admission granted to goods that are passing through a country rather than being imported into it. The goods can cross several boundaries duty-free and tax-free without customs inspection. Disposable and consumable items are excluded. Syn.: ATA carnet.

A certificate, required under some terms of trade, that attests that a particular shipment has insurance coverage. It is provided by the exporter's insurance company.

A certificate provided by an independent inspection organization attesting to the accuracy of the value and authenticity of the goods as listed on the invoice. The exporter obtains this preshipment certificate in the exporting country.

A document attesting to a shipment's country of origin.

A certificate that attests that the goods were manufactured in the exporter's country. It is provided and signed by the exporter's chamber of commerce.

A special invoice used for goods being sent to the importer's country. The importing country's consulate provides the stationery. The invoice is written in the language of the importing country and may require a government employee's signature.

An official document indicating the names of the seller and buyer, the product being shipped, and its value. The document is provided by the seller.

A document received from a governmental agency authorizing a certain quantity of an export to be sent to a given country.

A tax levied by a government on the importation, exportation, or use and consumption of goods.

An internationally standardized description of goods that uses a system of numbers to provide increasingly detailed classification and descriptions.

The US International Trade Commission's mechanism by which international tariffs are standardized. Importers and exporters classify goods moved across international borders using the harmonized system of the country of import. Then based on this classification the [this concept] is used to determine the amount of tariff they must pay.

A contract between an ocean carrier and a shipper arranging for carriage of freight. It provides evidence of the carrier's receipt of the cargo and lists the origin and destination ports, rates, quantities, weight, and any special handling requirements. The shipper is responsible for all losses other than for negligence on the part of the ocean carrier.

An importing country's government document that provides an importer with the express authorization to import a particular product.
